Easy YouTube Money Method 2.0

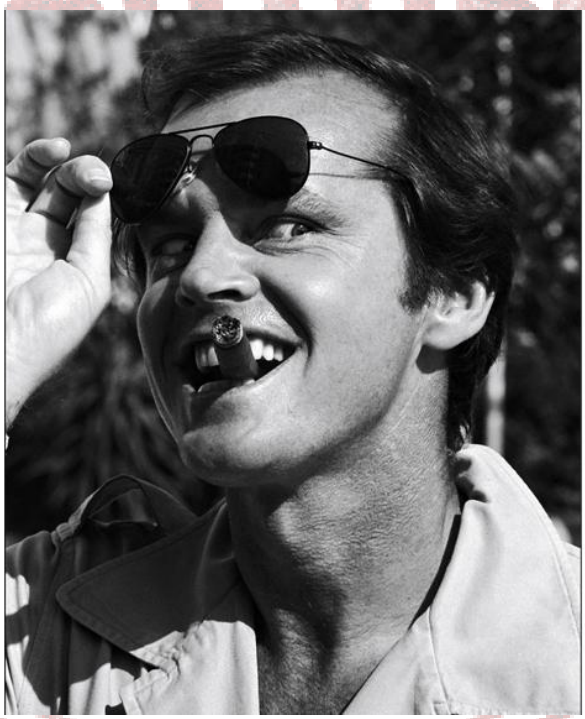
Examples of Iconic Accessories and Catch Phrases

These are things that could be considered idiosyncratic affectations but the fact of the matter is they serve to separate you from everyone else and rise above the noise of the internet. Having something like this will only build upon your legend and myth. It's a good thing if you are trying to build yourself up in a space.

Mr. T’s Chains

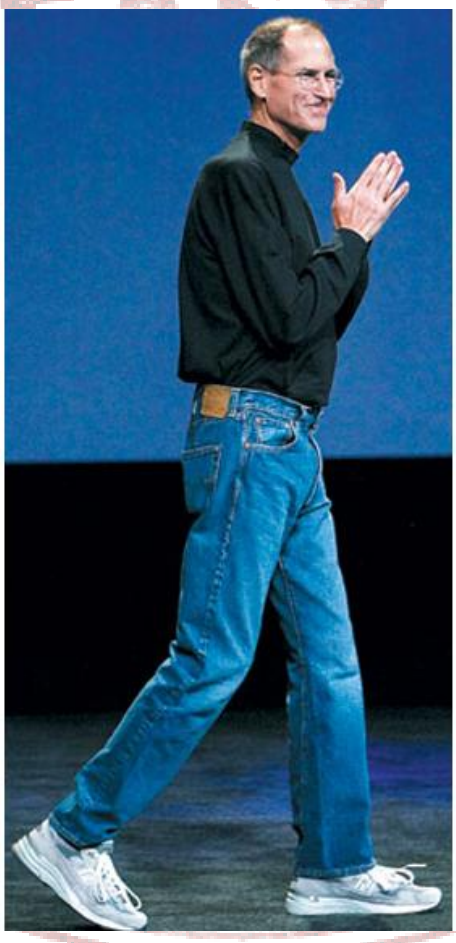
Michael Jackson's Glove

Jack Nicholson's Shades



Kanye West's Shutter Shades

Steve Job's New Balances



Tupac’s Bandana

Hunter S. Thompson's Cigarette Holder

Zero to Asset
EASY
in 30 Days

Slick Rick's Eye Patch

Peewee Herman's BowTie

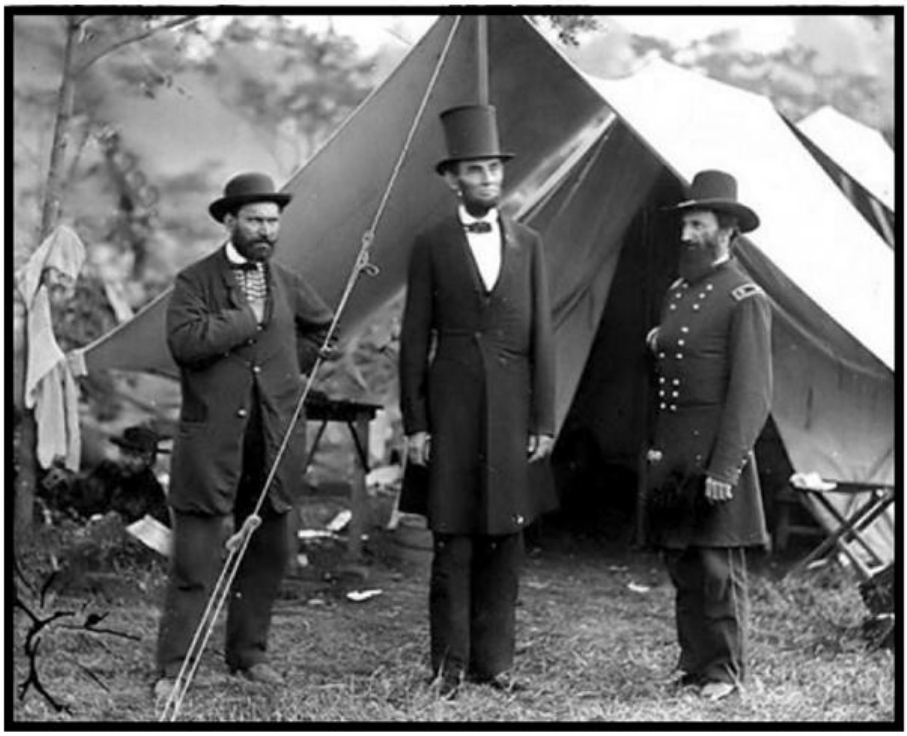
Zero to Hero
EASY
in 30 Days

Fidel Castro's Cigar

Nelly’s Band-Aid

Alfred Hitchcock's Shadow

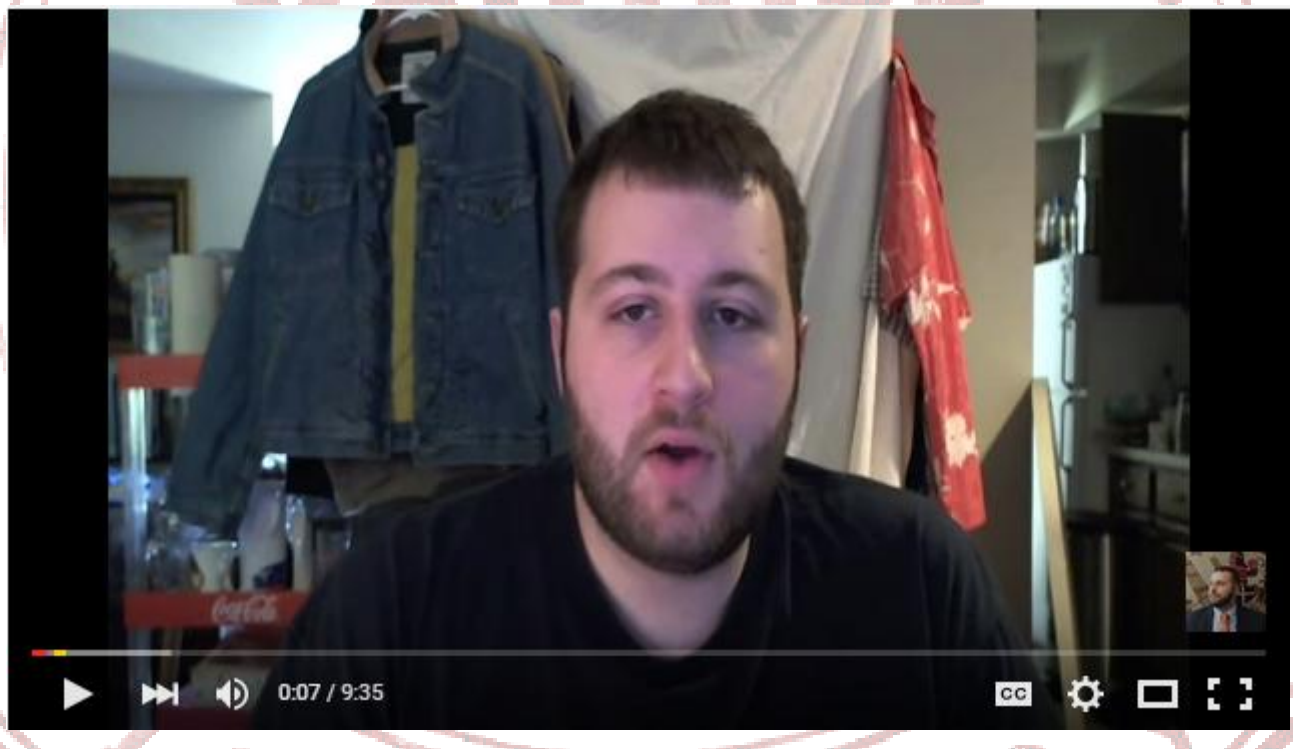
Abe's Top Hat



King Human’s Shades

ZeroFatz's Ball Cap

Picking For Profit's Beard



Frank Kern's Hair
(he cut it recently…not the same)

Claudio Sanchez's Explorer

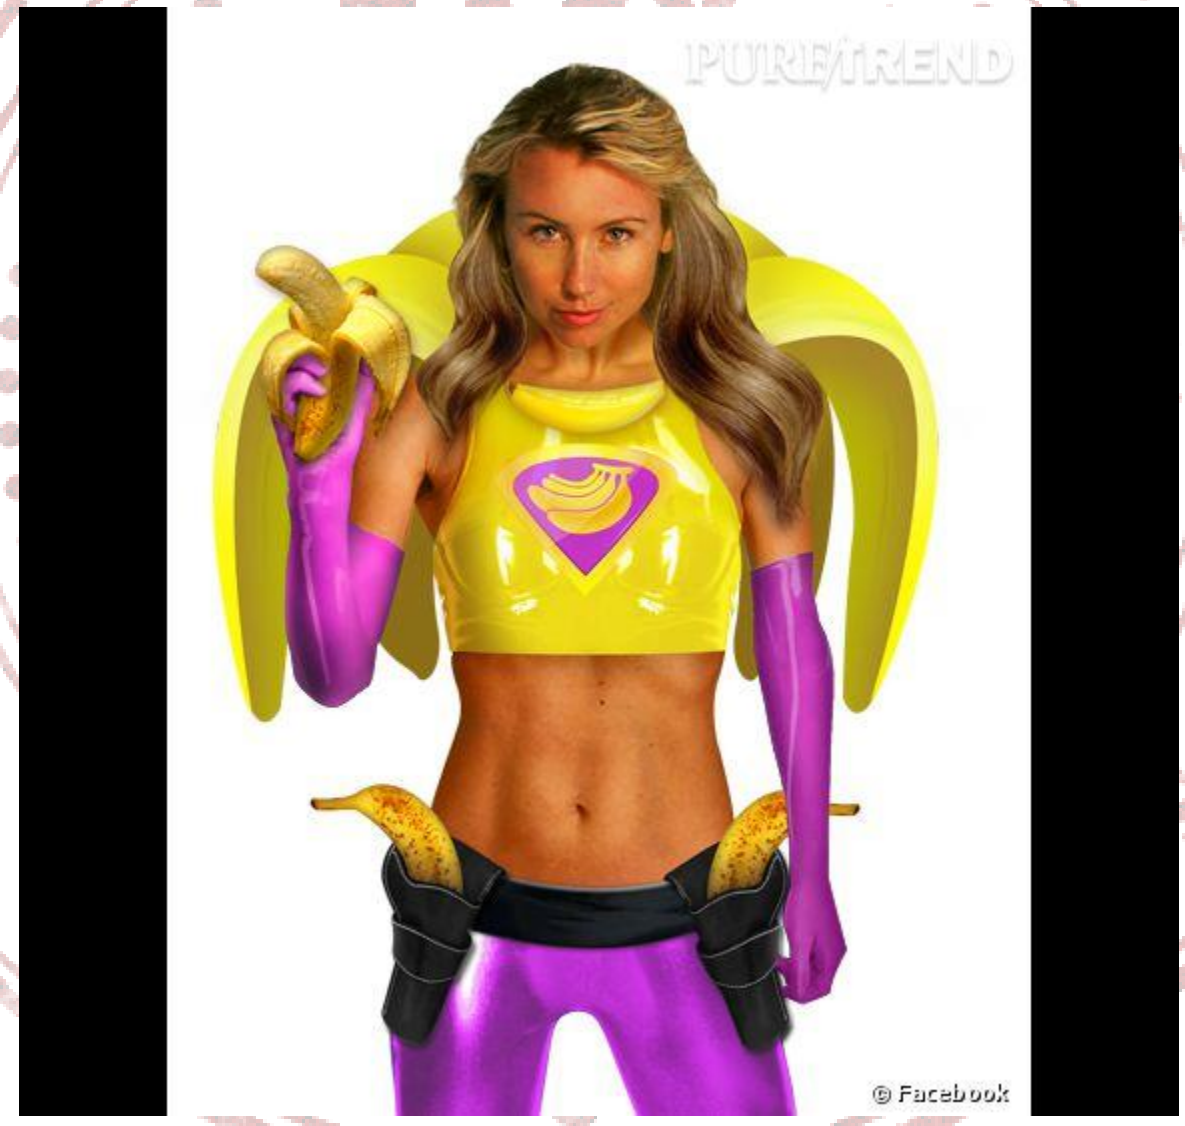
Bruce Springstein's Telecaster

Graveyard Girl's Tea and "Sippy Sippy"

Abdul S. Mohammed's "Click Click Click Signing Off"

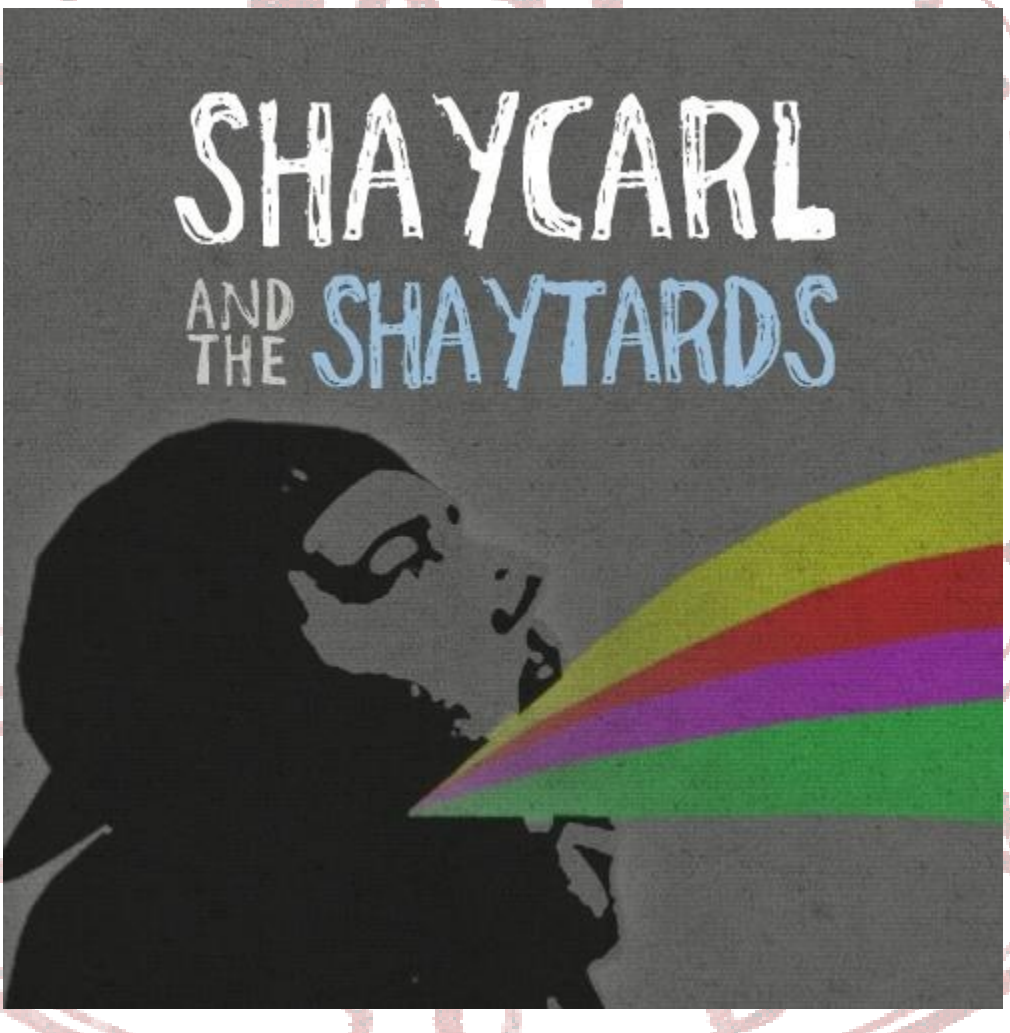
DurianRider's "Carb the F*ck UP!"

Freelee The Banana Girl's "Hey Fruit Bats!"



PiinkSparkles
“Hey Cuties!”

Shaytard's
"Hey I'm Vloggin' Here!"



Casey Neistat's Sunglasses

Stuart Walker's Avatar

Dereck Halpern's Hair (he made it a character by talking about it frequently)

The Hodge Twins
“looking at the camera thing they do at the start of all their videos”

Philip DeFranco's "what's up nation!" and "you've just been Philled in"

Hutch's "I make videos and put them on the Internet"

VSauce intros.

"Hey, VSauce! Michael here."

"VSauce! Kevin here."

"Hey, VSauce! I'm Jake..."

"And as always... Thanks for watching."

Alright Enough!

- Okay so I admit it I am a little obsessed with this weird crap and I could on and on with these accessories and catch phrases all day but who really wants to flip through all those? …besides me.

- Anyways…you guys get the point. Something like this can help you build yourself up and create more legend and myth around you.

- For me it started with just a baseball cap. Then when I didn't wear it one day people complained. It's funny how things like that go.

- Good luck everyone! -Kam