About Me

Hey, it's Naidy!

Congratulations and thank you for purchasing The Ultimate Traffic Monster and I guarantee you won't be disappointed in what I have in store for you.

I really appreciate you putting your trust in me and I'll try my best to reward you for investing your time and money in this course.

If you haven't heard of my boring story... My name is Naidy Phoon, I'm a full-time Internet marketer from Malaysia.

I dropped out of college at the age of 19 and have been doing Internet marketing ever since.

IM has allowed many people to escape the rat race, but I was able to avoid it altogether.

Never had a job in my life, and I intend to keep it that way.

I specialize in product creation and affiliate marketing. Throughout my IM journey I've made mistakes, I've learned from the best, and I love helping other people achieving their goals.

I'm always on the lookout for new marketing techniques and traffic sources and this is one of the most powerful one that I've discovered.

Introduction

Many sellers boast of their ability to dominate the front page of Google, but I'll do better than that . I'll dominate the front page of the Internet - without having to perform those mundane tasks that you and I are well familiar with.

The tasks that you will perform have a much,much better reward to effort ratio compared to SEO tasks.

If you haven't guessed it by now, I'm talking about Reddit marketing.

If you've been online for awhile, you probably know of Reddit.

Reddit calls itself the front page of the Internet, and trust me, they're not far off.

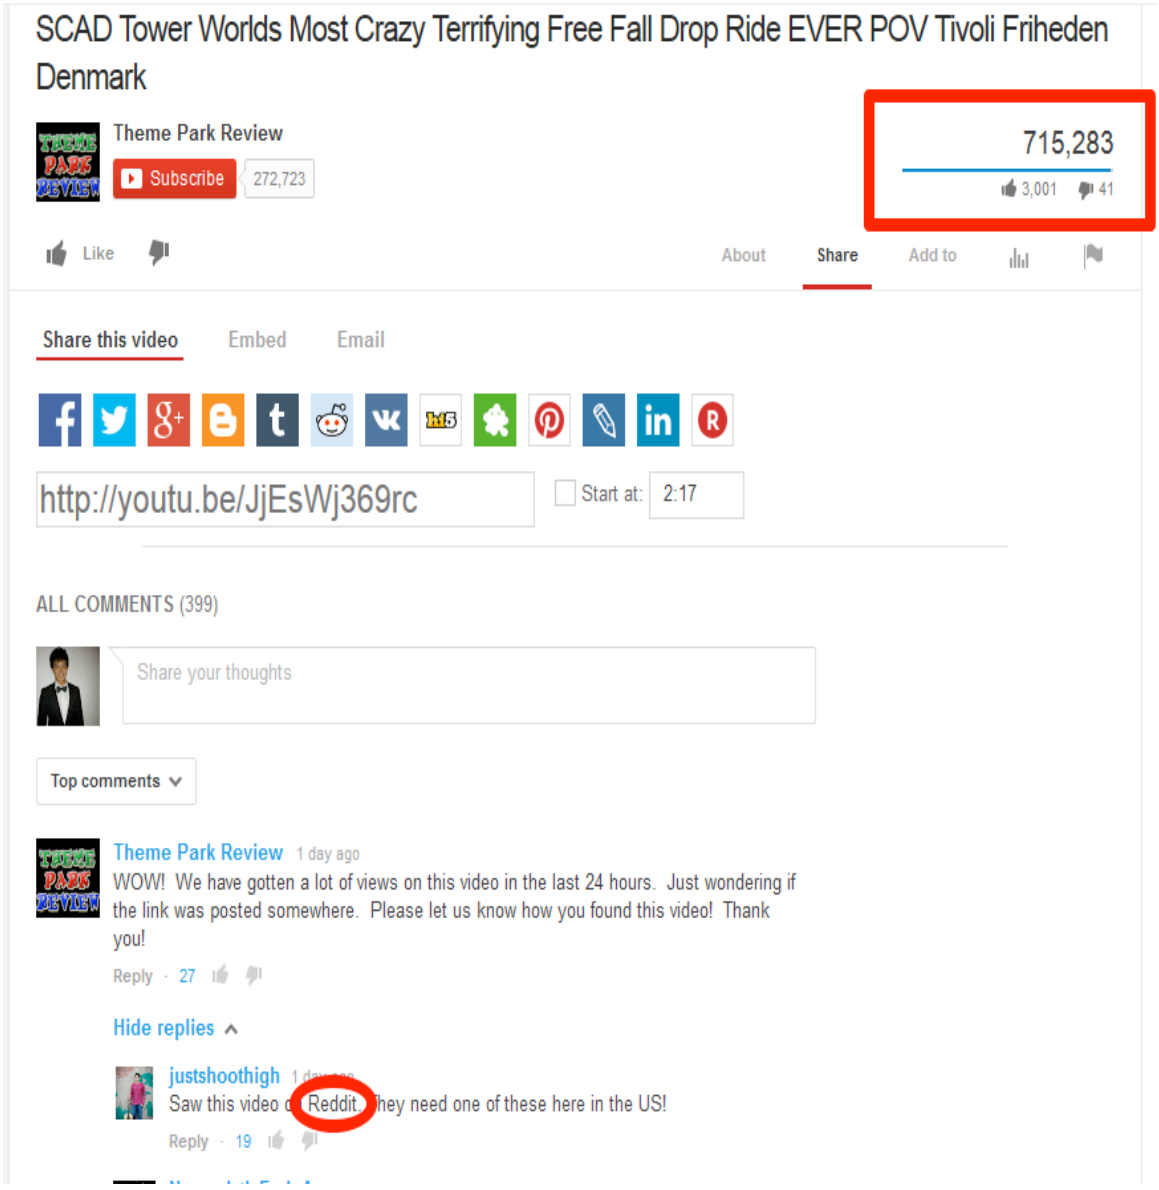

Let me share with you some Reddit stats to whet your appetite :

- Just under 20 MILLION unique visitors per month - that's right, 20,000,000 UNIQUE visitors a month.

- 170 MILLION page views per month - once again, 170,000,000 page views per month.

Imagine... Being able to get a tiny piece of that traffic pie.... You do the math! Oh man, I'm getting excited just thinking about it!

Here's what Reddit can do for you :

Okay, I know what you're thinking : Naidy, if Reddit is really so powerful, why aren't more gurus creating products on them and why aren't marketers finding success?

The reason is, Reddit is a really,really tough beast to tame.
The language that they use is unique to them, and they have some unspoken rules that one must adhere to at all costs.

The problem is, there exists many short-sighted marketers who have one goal and one goal only, which is to make money off the bat without the slightest intentions of providing value.

Reddit users can smell these types of marketers ten miles away and annihilates them in a very,very effective manner. They absolutely hate hollow, non-helpful marketing pitches.

I repeat, Reddit is extremely marketer unfriendly.

Please keep that in mind. I've had many friends who were absolutely annihilated trying to promote products and services on Reddit.

To succeed in Reddit, one has to truly intend to be helpful and be willing to give before he or she gets. Reddit users punish louzy content vehemently, but reward good content very,very well indeed.

There's a right way of doing things, which I will show you; and a wrong way of doing things, which I will also show you.

Brace yourself, for if you've never used Reddit before, you're in for a culture shock.

In this course, I'll cover how to drive floods of free traffic using the power of Reddit and make tons of commissions if you're an affiliate, or floods of direct Paypal payments if you're a merchant.

Before You Proceed

Before you go ahead and become a marketer at Reddit, I must tell you something, both as a marketer and a Reddit user.

Firstly, as a marketer. Reddit is an extremely powerful source, even much so than other social networking sites.

Having said that, please promise me that you will be ethical and be value-oriented in your marketing. I will talk about the reasons for this later on and the way to go about it. What do I mean about this, do NOT spam, do NOT be mean to other users, do NOT post rubbish content - because these methods DO NOT work on Reddit. Also, if you're new to Reddit, please go through the course slowly and follow the system to the letter.

From a Reddit user's standpoint, I plead that you enter Reddit with the intention of providing value. Reddit is like a home to me and I do not want to be the one responsible for bringing in a bunch of spammy marketers.

Instead, my hope is that ethical marketers like yourself will add color and value to the already wonderful and exciting community of Reddit.

Understanding Reddit

Here's the mascot of Reddit - his name is Snoo.

Cute, isn't it! :)

Here are some stats we're going to take into consideration when marketing on Reddit.

 The median Reddit user age is 25-34, and is in the lowest income bracket - this means that we obviously don't want to be selling stuff that are too expensive.

Also, Reddit users are mostly men. So one should take that into consideration when choosing their offers.

Another fact - The popularity of an article is inversely proportional to its length. This means that most of the time, we should keep our articles short and straight to the point.

The majority of Reddit users are tech-savvy, young and critical.

They are extremely intelligent, which means that B.S. Fake review videos promoting some weight loss product will not work.

They’re not afraid to voice their opinions, and will often engage in long, civil (mostly) discussions.

Terminology

Here are some terms that you must understand if you want to succeed in Reddit :

- Subreddit

A subreddit is a sub-set of the reddit community. For example, there's the "loseit" subreddit, where reddit members that are dedicated to weight loss document their progress and ask questions. Other examples of subreddits include "videos", "fitness", etc...

Subreddits are written in the format : r/subreddit.

Ex. r/videos, r/fitness, r/loseit, etc..

There are over 100,000 subreddits - some consist of as many as hundreds of thousands of members, some as little as a couple.

Subreddits can be public or private.

- Upvotes

Upvotes are synonymous to “likes” and “+1s”. Reddit users give upvotes to posts or comments that they like.

- Downvotes

The opposite of upvotes.

-Submission score (Huge factor in Reddit ranking)

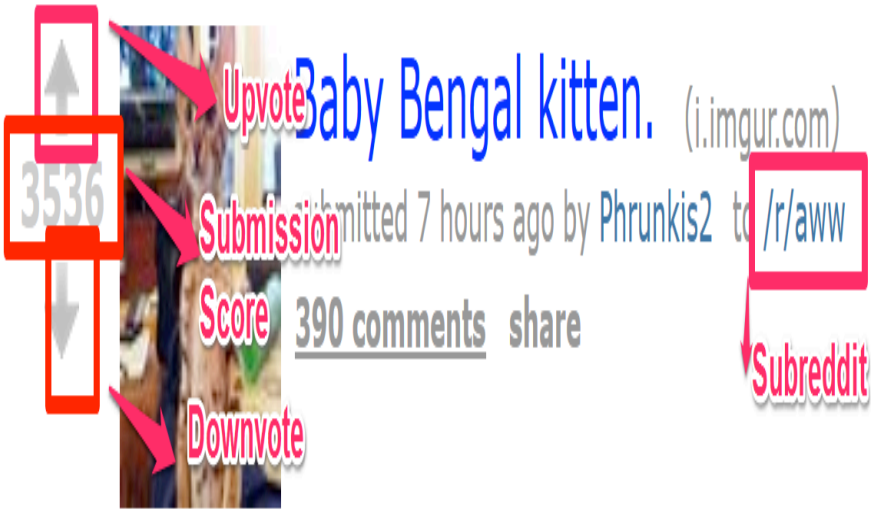

No. of upvotes - No. of downvotes

- Karma

Karma is a reflection of the goodwill that you've done for the Reddit community. It's displayed on your user panel.

According to Wikipedia, Users gain one point of link karma when another user votes up their submission and lose a point when a user votes down their submission.

But in reality this is not always the case. Many have tried but can't really figure out the algorithm. I'd say it's 75% of the net upvotes. So if you receive 10 upvotes you'll probably get 5-7 link karma.

Jargon

Here are some popular reddit jargon. Some of these are not exclusive to Reddit, but they're useful to know.

-OP

Original poster : The person who started a thread or submitted a post.

- TIL

Today I learned : Self-explanatory

- AMA

Ask me anything : Self-explanatory

- TL;DR

Too long,didn't read : Something like "long story short".
Ex. (after a long story) TL;DR, I learned that cats are funny..

- IAmA

I am a : Self-explanatory

- NSFW

Not safe for work : Content inappropriate for public viewing.

-NSFL

Not safe for life : Hazardous activity, do not imitate.

- TMI

Too much information : Self-explanatory.

Picking Your Offer

Choosing the right offers is absolutely crucial if you want to succeed in Reddit.

Here are some criteria that must be taken into consideration when selecting offers to promote on Reddit, whether you're an affiliate marketer or product owner.

I've mentioned above that Reddit users are predominantly young and below in lower income brackets, we don't want to choose offers that are too expensive.

So if you're an affiliate you could go with CPA offers or lower priced digital/physical products. Trial offers, email/zip/form submits work best.

Whereas if you're a product owner you'll want to present your lower ticket offers, at least for your front end offer.

Quality and Reputation

You do NOT want to attempt to fool Reddit users. They have a great eye for poor products and are highly skeptical - they'll search for reviews online, they'll ask for opinions, etc.. So make sure that the product that you're selling is of good quality and has a good reputation in the marketplace.

Niche

Remember - demographics,demographics and demographics! A large majority of Reddit users are male, so keep that in mind when choosing your niche.

If you don't have your own product, simply search for affiliate products to promote. You can promote cost-per-sale offers or cost-per-action offers. Here are the places that you can search for these offers :

Clickbank

Maxbounty

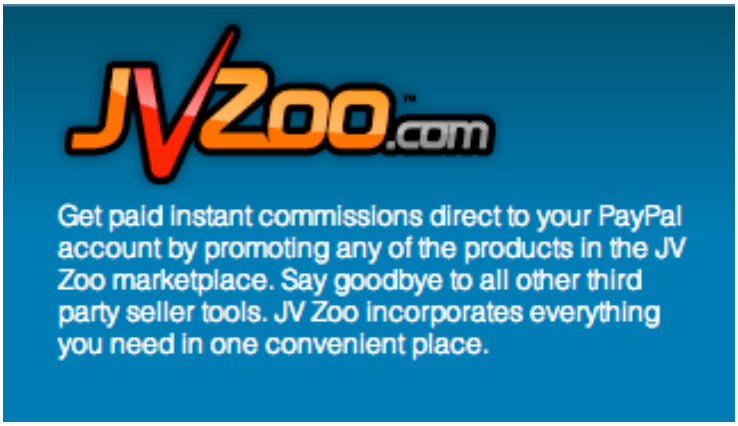

Peerfly

WarriorPlus

JVZOO

Building A Website

This is a must. Why you ask ?

Direct linking does not work on Reddit. Not only will your post get downvoted into oblivion, nobody will buy, and you'll receive a ton of heat from Reddit users.

So what we need to do is create a simple website. If you already have a website, you can use that.

And from that affiliate/vendor website, we'll create an informational and/or informative post and include the link to the website post in our reddit post.

Don't worry, I'll show you how to do this.

Always keep this in mind :

Reddit users come on Reddit to learn and to be entertained, not to be pitched offers.People like to buy, they just don't like to be sold to.

There's a sense of control associated with the act of buying, but not the state of being sold to. That's why most people hate pushy car salesmen who chase them around the showroom, compared to one that treats them like human - offering them a drink, keeping their distance, and answering their questions patiently.

That's what we're going to do on Reddit - we're going to offer the users drinks (awesome content), keeping our distance (being conservative) and answering the questions patiently. (interacting) Don't be a pushy car salesman!

For now, just create your affiliate website before your proceed, if you don't already have a website.

Simple websites like those that are similar to those that are Google Adwords compliant (just a couple of posts and pages) will do - More than a landing page, but less than an authority site - though if you already have an authority site that's even more awesome!

If you don't already know how to build a simple website, check out the "cash-sucking machine" report that I've attached as a bonus.

The domain registrar that I recommend is Namecheap

Whereas the hosting company that I recommend is Hostgator.

Research

Before posting on Reddit, we have to first find out the current hot topics. You'll find that the front page of Reddit is often a reflection of the current trends and happenings.

For example, during the World Cup, the front page of Reddit was filled with news about it. I'm not talking about a particular subreddit here, I'm talking about the entire Reddit, that's right - the front page of the Internet.

So choose your topic wisely by capitalizing on current hot topics and you may hit a homerun.

I do not advice going for these general hot topics, I suggest finding for hot topics/news in your particular niche, so that you can dominate related subreddits.

Here are some sites that you can use to keep up with the current news.

http://www.newser.com/

http://www.blogrunner.com/

http://n4g.com/

http://www.buzzfeed.com/

http://www.newspond.com/

So for example when you head over to newser.com, you can see a bunch of hot news on the front page.

But if you want to be more specific, you can choose a category of news at the top of the page.

Posts

Like I said, we'll be linking to posts on our website which promote affiliate offers.

Videos

One way to do this is to create informational videos.

If you're good at creating videos, you can create one within minutes. Just a short video giving some valuable information will do.

The tools that I use are Camtasia studio to record the screen and to record my voice and Microsoft Powerpoint to create the slides. After that, I sync the both.

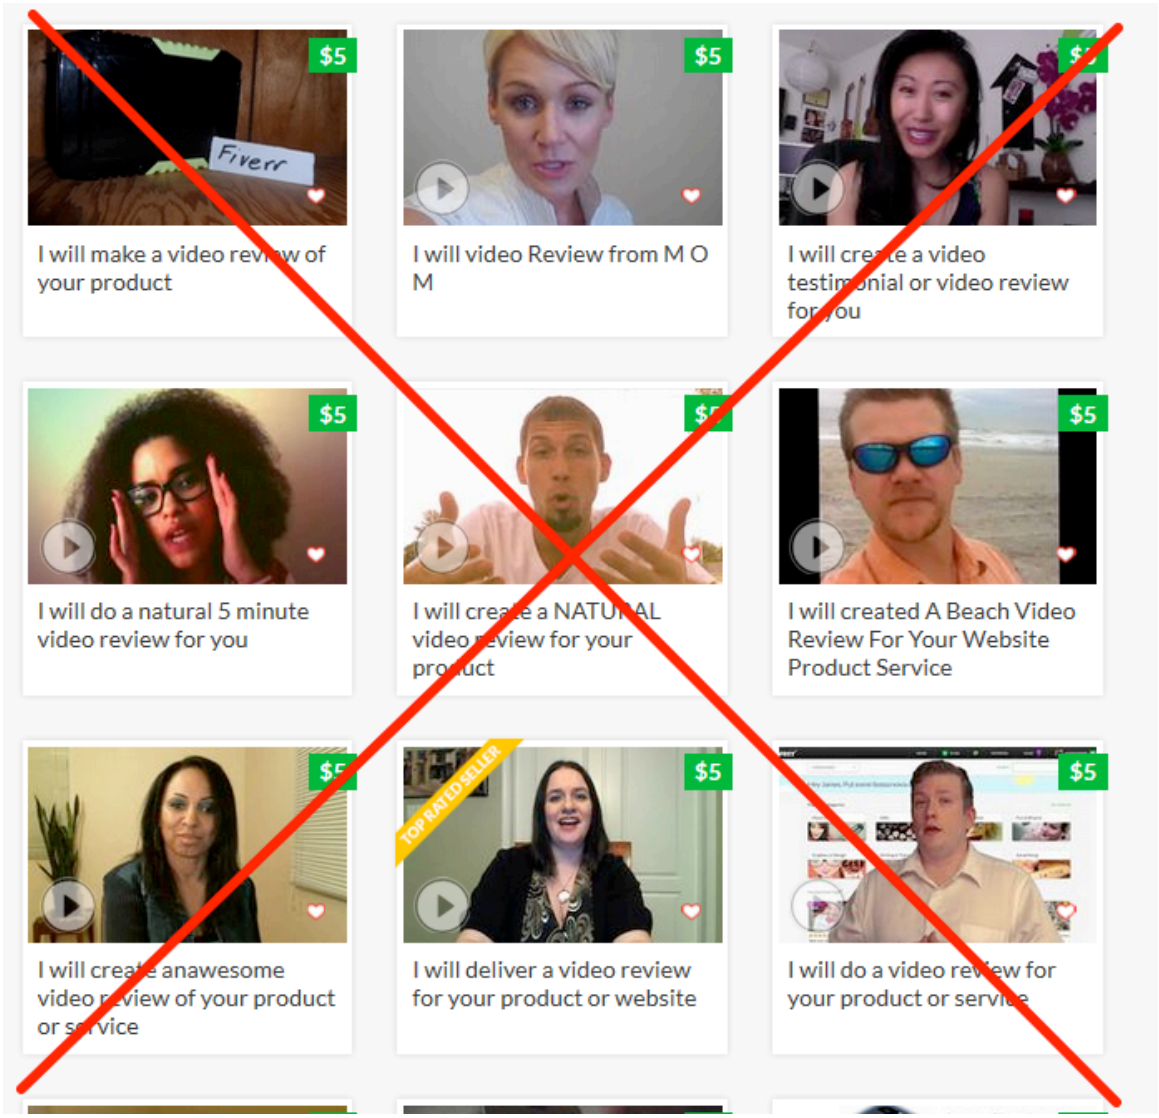

If you're feeling adventurous, take out that camera and start filming! Reddit users respond very well when there's that human element.

If you're not good at videos, you can outsource it at Fiverr.

Once again it's important to be value-oriented in our Reddit marketing.

Those fake reviews/testimonials videos do not work well at all. Even worse are those videos that basically show a still image and ask the prospects to click on the link in the description. Worst way to market on Reddit.

Instead, get videos like this that provide information and/or entertain.

https://www.fiverr.com/growvideo/be-your-fitness-workout-video-spokesperson

OR

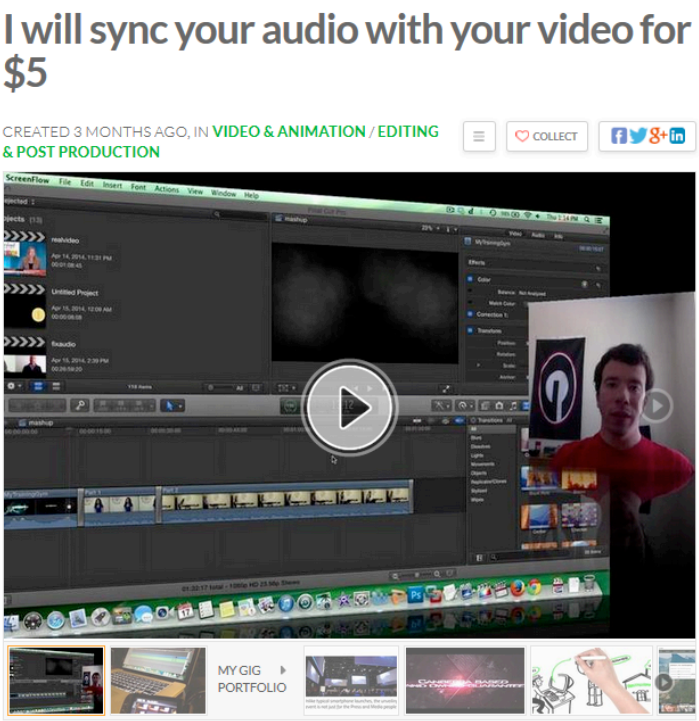

You could create Powerpoint presentations using Camtasia + Microsoft Powerpoint (or other free software)

Here are a couple of very,very good gigs that I often use synergistically to create videos :

https://www.fiverr.com/johndelivers/voice-over-narration-600-words-or-6min-in-24hrs-professional-huge-deal

John is a great guy who does good work!

https://www.fiverr.com/timhermanson/sync-your-audio-with-your-video

Tim delivers his work very quickly. Just provide your powerpoint slides and your audio and he'll sync them.

After that simply upload your video(s) to Youtube and post them on your website.

Articles

Articles are great because they are easy to create and they attract a lot of visitors to our site. You can either write them yourself or outsource them at website like Epicwrite or Iwriter.

I hate being repetitive, but once again please create content-packed articles and not just a 10-word review article of some weight loss product linking to a Clickbank offer.

If you have a hard time producing quality content, here's a trick.

Here's a super cool way that you can use to find thousands of PDF files that you can use to bounce ideas off.

Remember, don't plagiarize. The ramifications could be severe. It's okay to extract some key elements, but don't copy word for word.

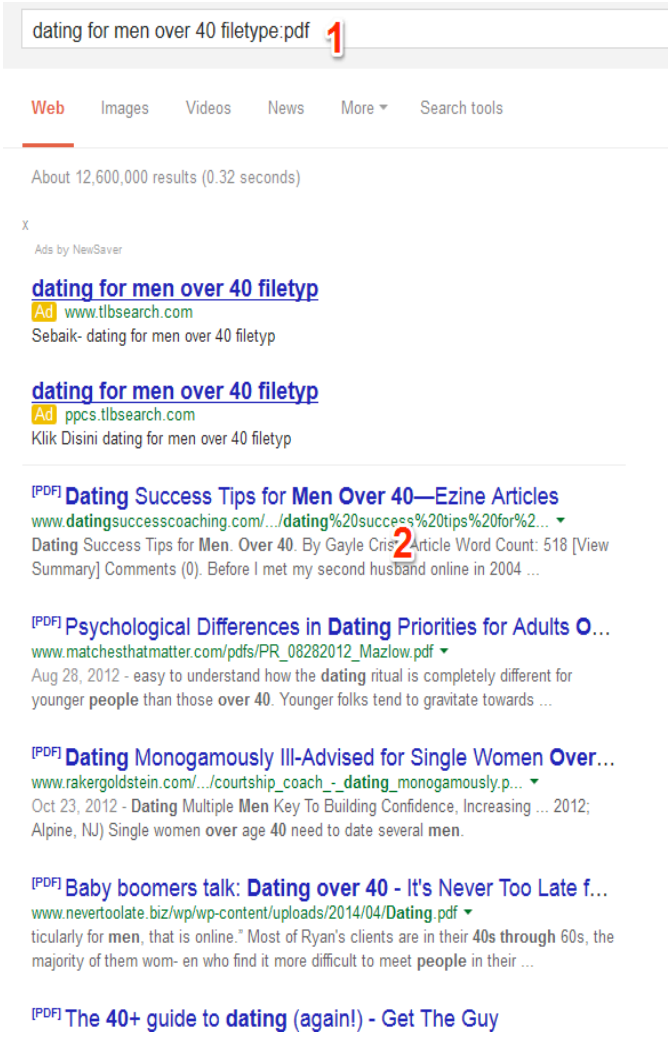

First, go to google.com.

Then, in the search bar, key in this search term :

Your Sub-Niche/Niche filetype:pdf

So if your sub-niche was weight loss for women, you would key in weight loss for women filetype:pdf

You'll see a ton of PDF files that you can download and get ideas and content from.

Images/Infographics

You can create images that have a high tendency to go viral like memes or funny ones or you could create infograhics that Reddit users love as they illustrate information in an easy-to-digest manner.

Again, you can outsource this at Fiverr or create them yourself. I like using Picmonkey to create attractive images for free.

Here's one of mine :

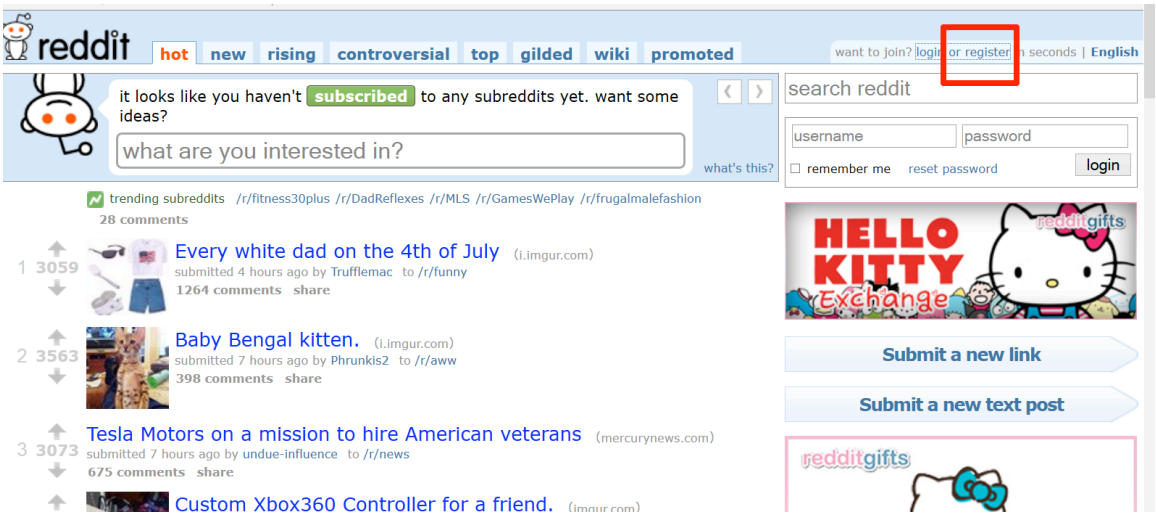

Whichever type of post you decide to go with I highly recommend you contribute to the community and accumulate some karma first before linking to your own offers, or to affiliate offers.

Creating An Account

Creating an account on Reddit is extremely easy. Just enter your username, password and email and you're good to go! You don't even need to confirm your email address!

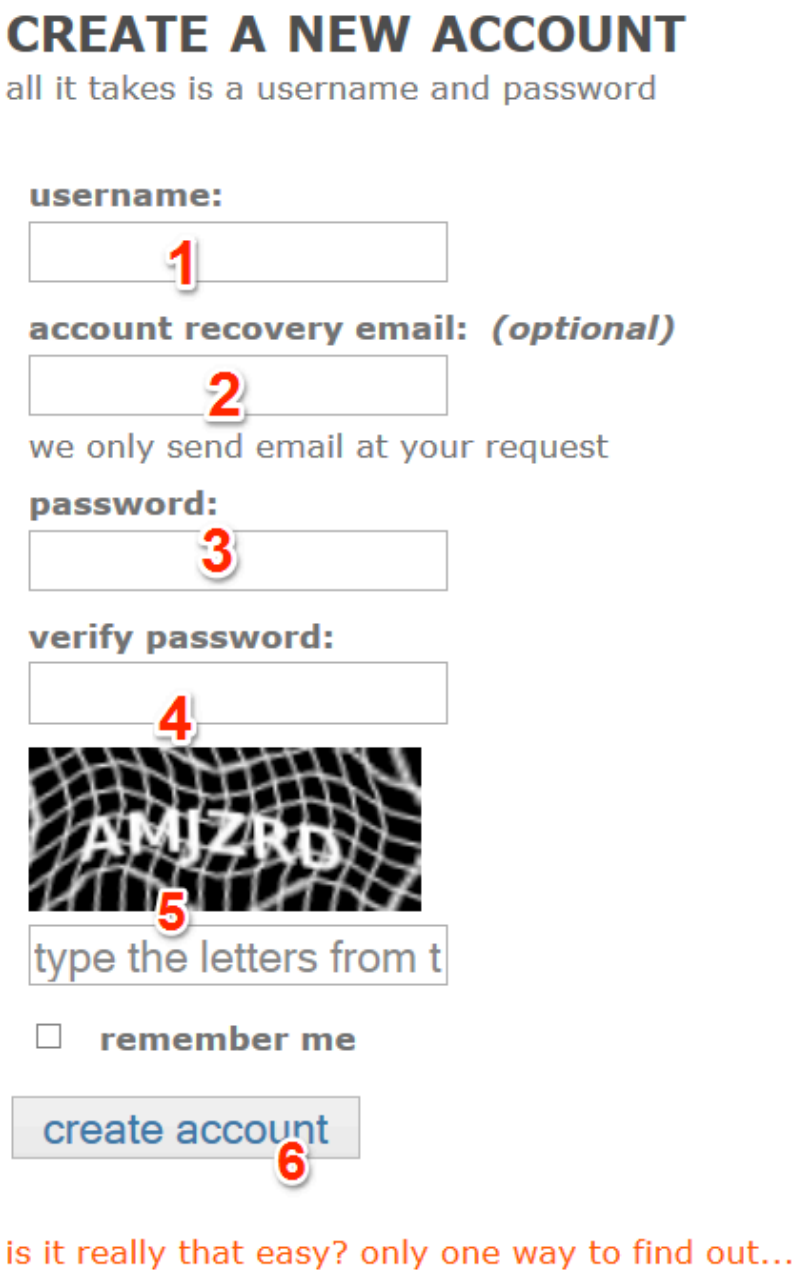

First, click on the "register" button.

It takes literally just seconds to create an account, so I recommend that you use a new one for every niche that you venture into, or if you want, every new offer your promote.

There are what we call "throwaway" accounts which are accounts that are dispensable. So if your rep is completely ruined in one account/profile of yours you can always create a new one. But remember, the one post/day rule still applies. Reddit tracks users'

IP addresses. And please do not try to get around it, it's just not worth it.

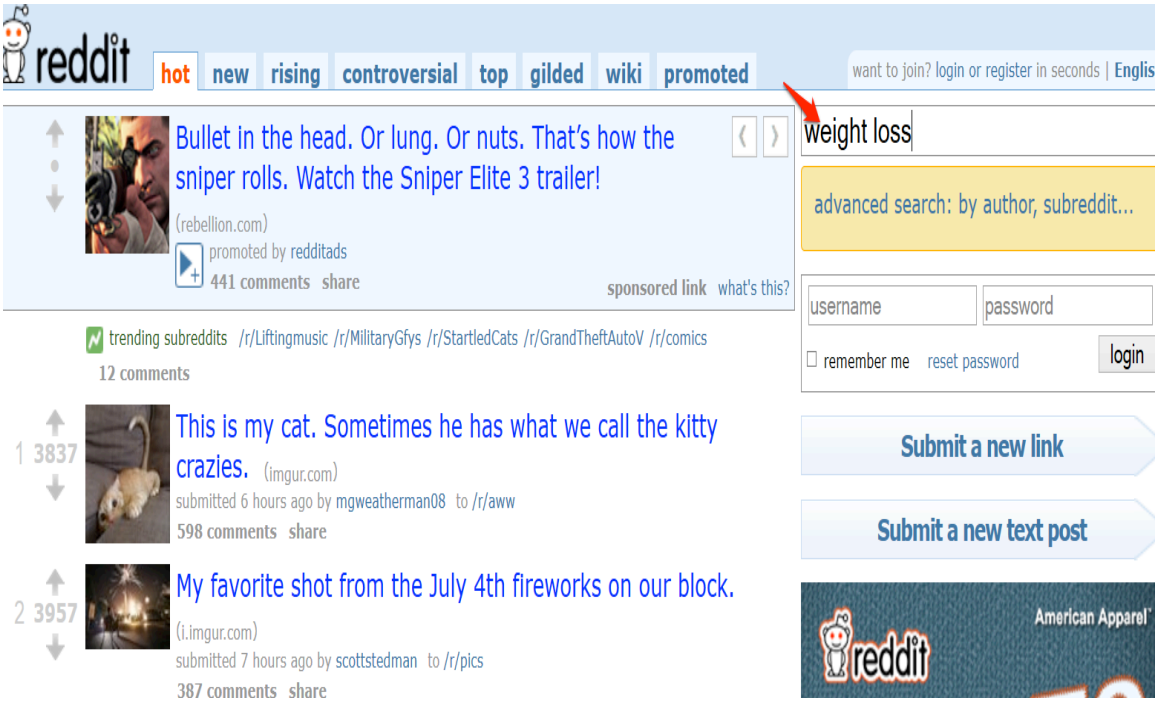

You'll want to choose a username that is highly related to your niche.

Choosing A Subreddit

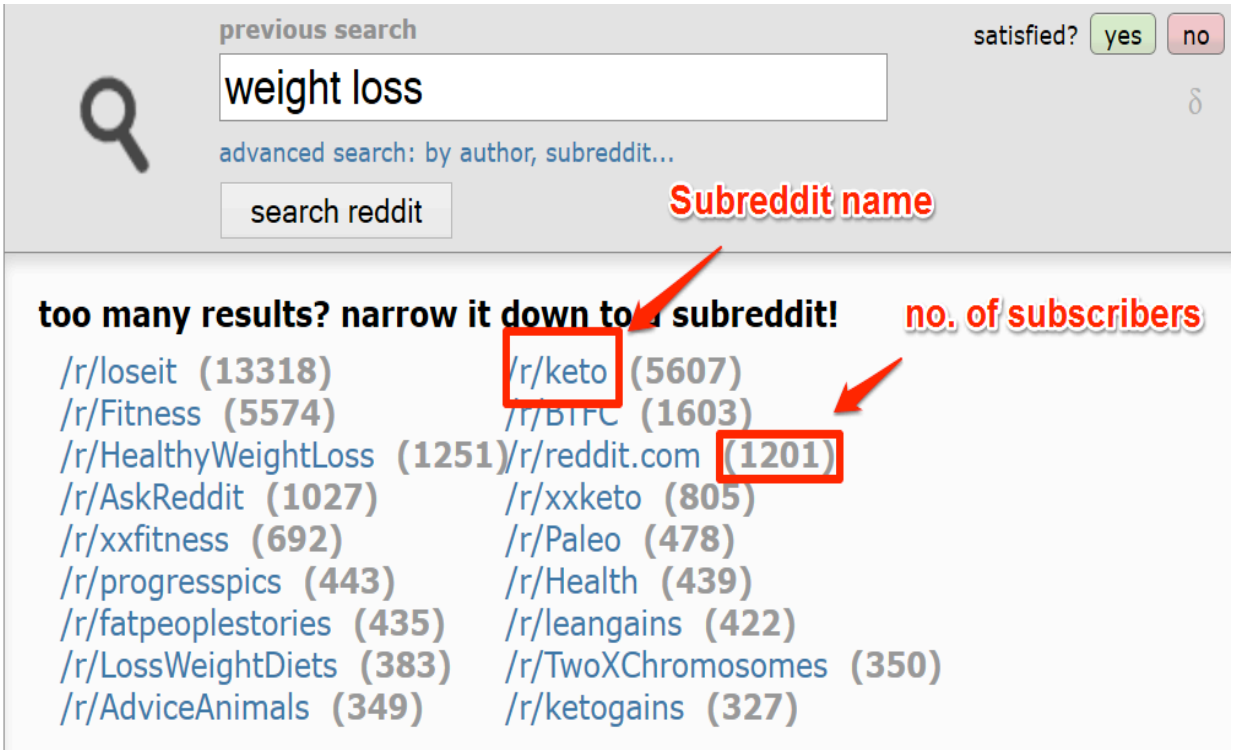

Now, it's time to choose a subreddit that is highly relevant to your offer.

If you remember, a sub-reddit is a sub-set of the reddit community. Each sub-reddit has its own moderators (volunteers) and its own rules.

To search for a relevant subreddit, simply type in the main keyword of your offer.

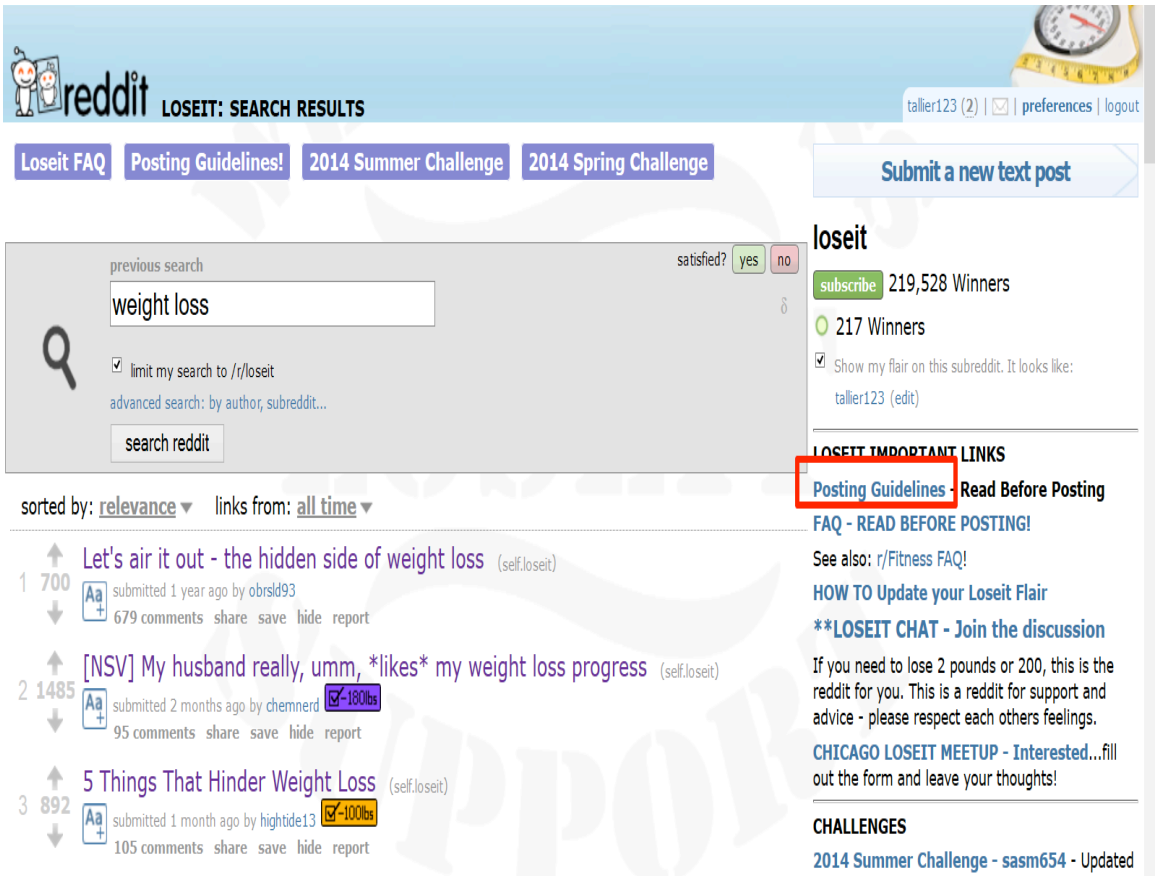

For example, if I'm promoting a weight loss offer, I'll just type in the phrase "weight loss".

You'll see a list of related subreddits alongside the number of subscribers.

Reddit Posts

Before proceeding, make sure to read the posting guidelines of the subreddit so that you don't break any rules.

Hold your horses! I know that you're excited to post on Reddit and drive floods of traffic to website and offers. But here's the thing. Most people are used to quantity posting when it comes to social media marketing. They post in hundreds of Facebook groups, pin thousands of images on Pinterest,etc..

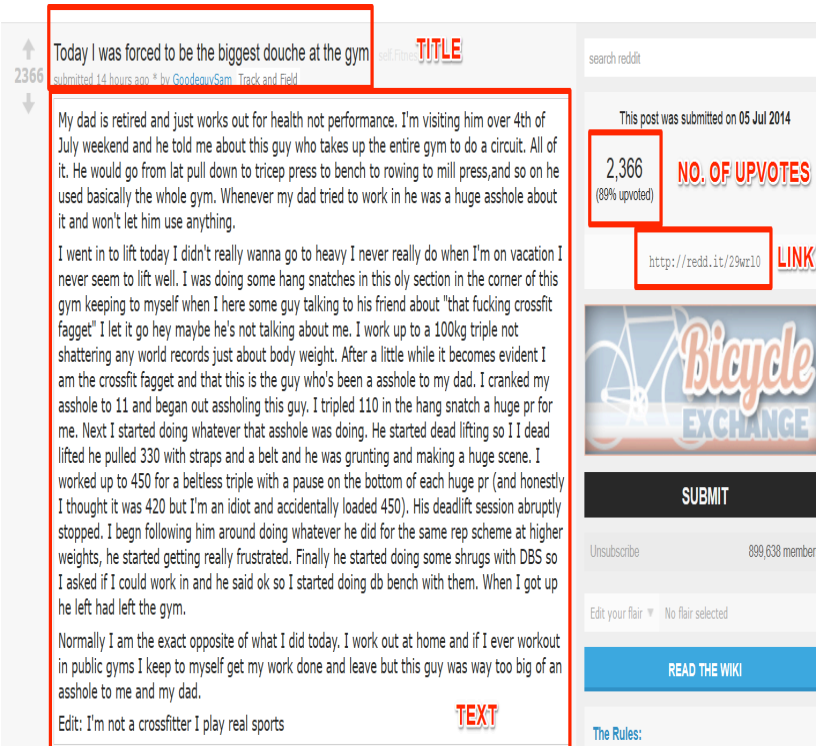

But we're only going to post once per day on Reddit.

Yup, that wasn't a typo. Only one post per day. We're going to focus on the quality of the post, rather than the quantity. I'm talking about posts here, not comments. This is because Reddit is extremely spam-sensitive hence new accounts have many restrictions.

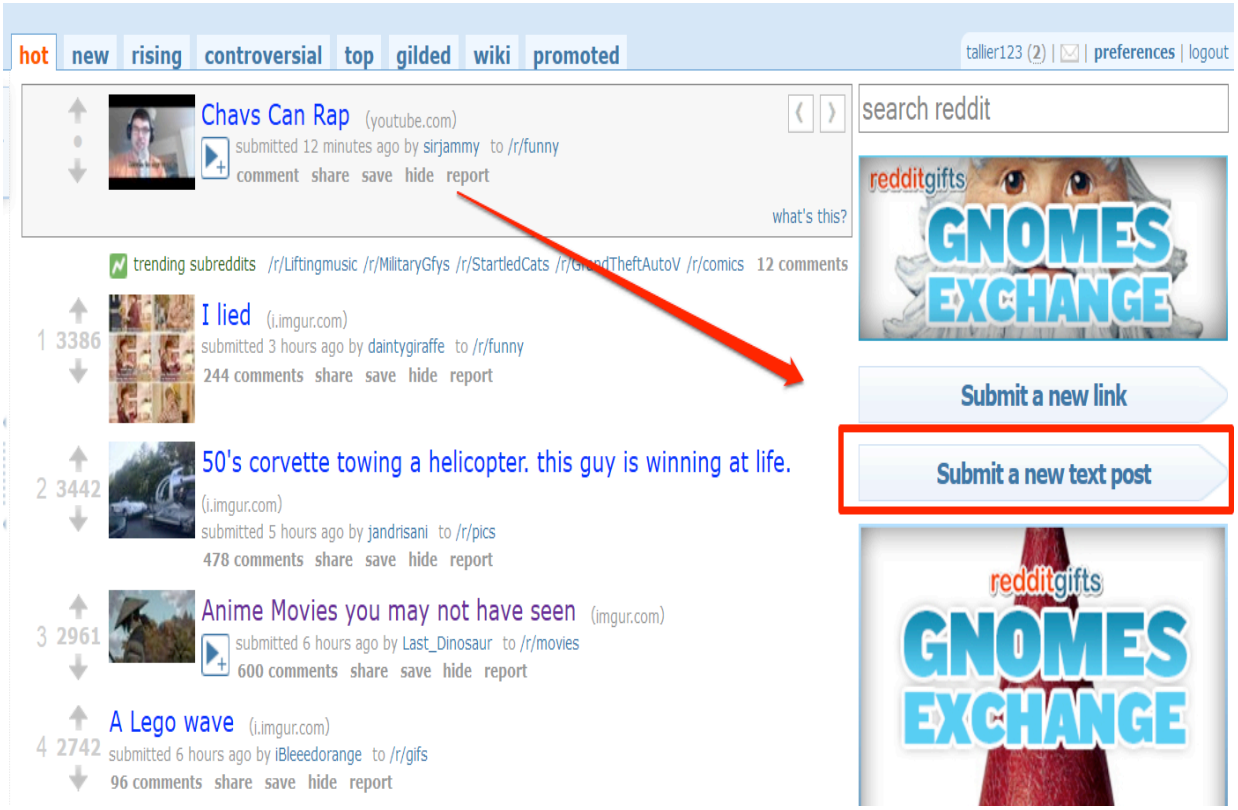

There are two types of posts that users can submit in Reddit :

Text Posts

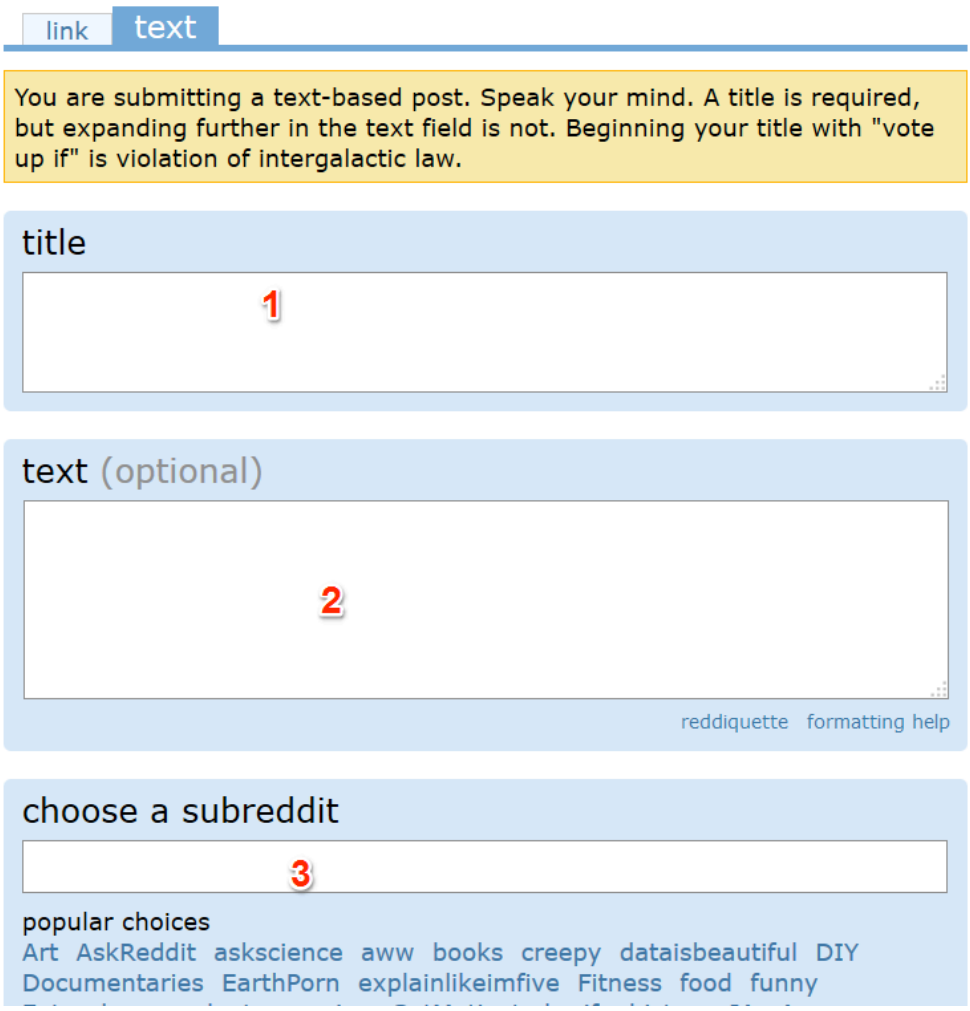

Pretty self explanatory - text posts are similar to articles where there's a title and text that expand on the title beneath.
Let's take a look at the anatomy of a Reddit text post.

To submit a text post, click on “submit a new text post”.

There are three steps to submitting a text post :

The Title

First, we'll need a great title.

My absolute favorite title generator is Portent's title maker which was recommended to me by a friend. Click Here to go to access the free tool.

Simply enter your keyword and you'll get tons of headline/title ideas.

Text

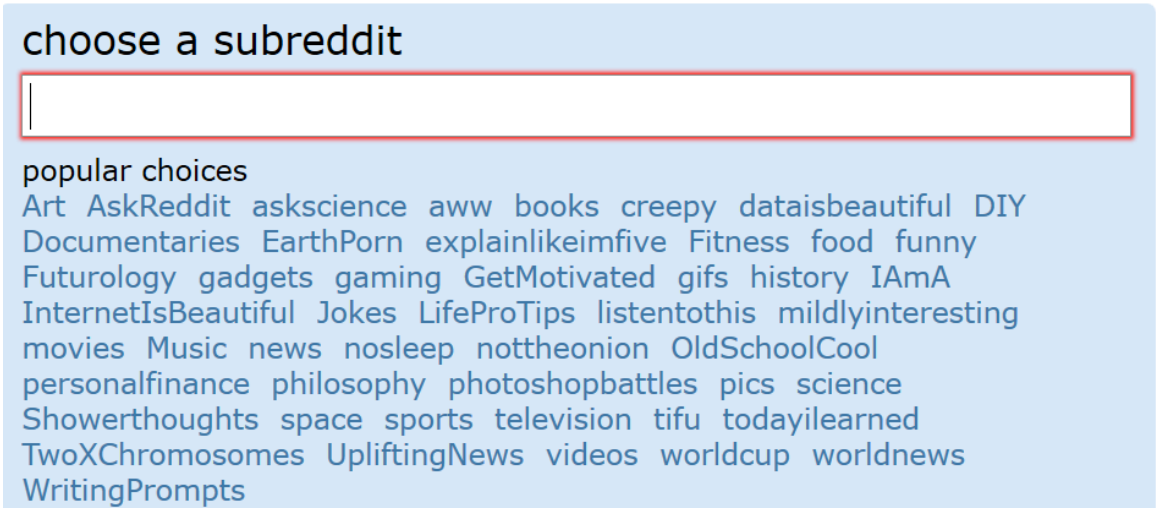

For the “text” field, you’ll have to enter some informative/entertaining content that is relevant to the subreddit and your offer.

At the end of the article, you’ll want to leave a link to the original source of the article, which is the link to the post on your website.

Choose A Subreddit

We've covered selecting an appropriate subreddit above, so at this point just select the subrredit that you've decided on. Lastly, click on "submit".

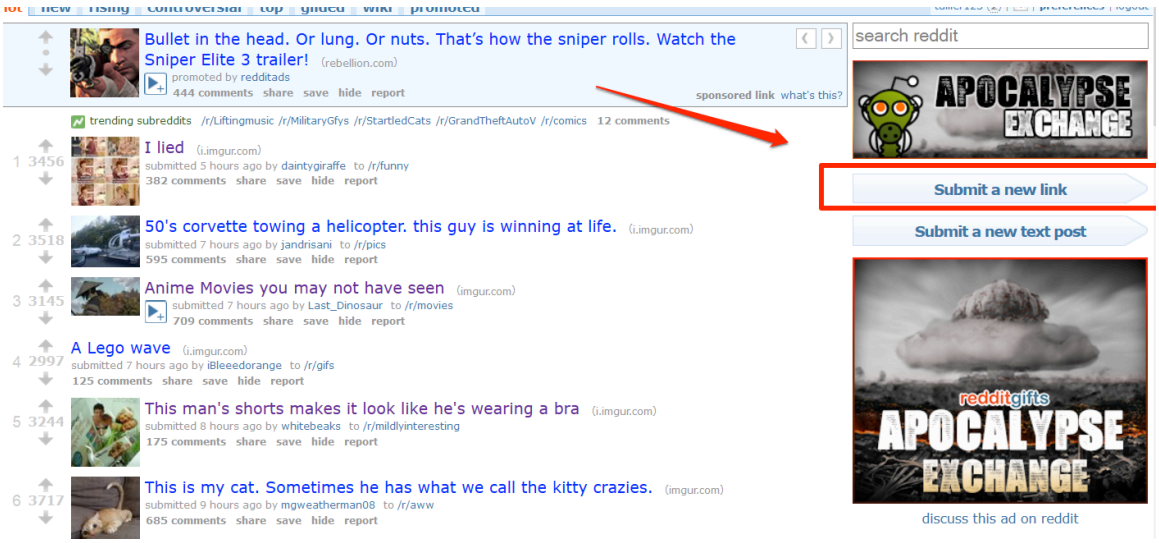

Link Submits

The process of submitting a link is similar to that of submitting a text post in the sense that you have to choose a subreddit and enter a title. But there's no need for any content.

These links usually lead to images or videos.

So if you've created some infographics or some videos, link submits are the way to go.

To submit a link, click on "submit a new link".

Same steps apply : Enter a great title, enter the URL to the video or the image, choose a subreddit, then submit.

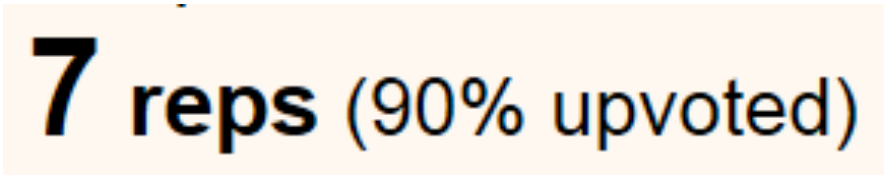

Ranking Factors

There's not much documentation on Reddit search algorithms, but there are a couple of ranking factors that you should take into consideration when trying to rank your posts on the front page of your subreddit.

Upvotes/Submission Score

Explanation :

Upvotes received during the first 10 hours count a lot towards the rankings of your text post or link.
This is why you often see posts with much,much less upvotes outranking those with a higher amount of upvotes, sometimes by the thousands.

Solution :

- Submit your text posts or links early in the morning or in the evening. These are before and after office hours - The best time is at/before 5am EST. If your content is very good and you've got an awesome title, you'll have no problems rising to the top of the rankings organically.

- I'm not telling you to do this, but I'm just saying that this is what some people do. There are people that provide upvotes for a fee - Gig sellers on Fiverr, indepedent service providers. Sites like enhanceview also sell upvotes. Lastly, there are groups that swap upvotes. Buying upvotes, especially if they're delivered in less than 10-12 of posting, will propel the post to the top of the rankings fast.

- Ensure the quality of your content. This is a must. Must,must must! Why? Because even if you buy a thousand upvotes and your content is terrible, Reddit users will know what's up and they'll downvote you like crazy and your submission score will be reduced to zero. So IF you decide to buy upvotes, know that it's just a catalyst to get your quality content seen by Reddit users, not a long-term solution.

- Don't worry if the upvotes don't come instantly. It's Reddit's in-built mechanism to prevent the bandwagon effect - more people upvoting the posts because the existing number of upvotes was already high, instead of upvoting because it was an awesome post.

Comments

Explanation :

The number of comments is indicative of interest in your post and will positively affect your rankings.

Solutions :

- You don’t need to, and shouldn’t buy comments. Why?
Firstly, they won’t respond to your comments to their comments. Also, most bought comments are generic and terrible, Reddit users can sense bought comments a mile away.

They’ll come naturally as your posts start to rank and they get exposure. Unlike posts, there aren’t really many restrictions on comments, but moderation is key.

- Respond to comments, this really helps because people then know that you’re a real person and not just a bot spamming links. It also creates a snowball effects, because someone might comment on the comment of others, or the comment of the comment of the comment of the... :)

- Be nice! Reddit users won’t hesitate to voice their honest opinions, so even if they leave a negative comment, don't take it personally and be professional.

Karma

Explanation :

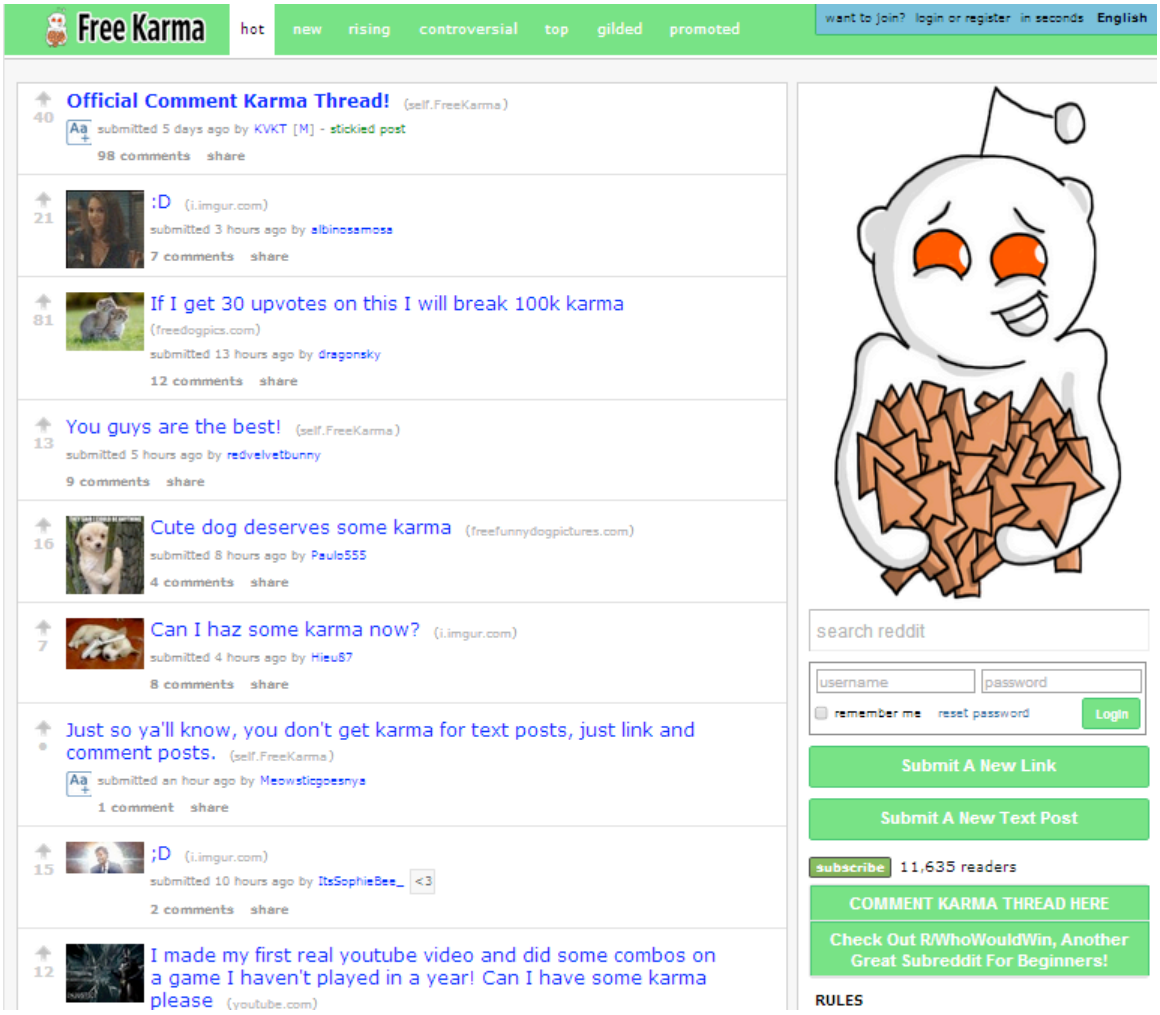

It's debatable whether karma make a big difference in the rankings of the posts that you submit, but one thing's for sure - people will trust you better if you have a high karma score and this adds credibility to your posts.

Solution :

-Contribute regularly and submit posts in different upvote-worthy subreddits.

-This is a subreddit that I've just discovered. It's a place for beginners to accumulate karma without much work at all.

http://www.reddit.com/r/freekarma

You can acquire karma very quickly using this subreddit, but please promise me that you'll adhere to the rules.

RULES

Don't be an ass! We're all supposed to be noobs here. Be helpful, don't have a hissy fit over reposts.

Don't spam. Feel free to post, but don't do it too often. Maybe, four times a day, at the max. Report spam by clicking "message the moderators" on the right hand side of the page.

Nothing NSFW. That means no porn or gore. If you see it, report it. If you have to ask if it qualifies as NSFW, it probably does.

Do not post personal information. Message the mods if there is some extenuating circumstance.

Don't offer to pay for upvotes. Not in gold, not in bitcoins, nothing.

Don't use this subreddit so you qualify for other subreddits. That means r/RandomActsOfGaming, r/RandomActsOfTf2, r/PokemonTrades, etc etc. Please report those who do. If we see any of these subreddits in your history, you may have forfeited your right to use this sub, to our discretion.

If you have any questions or suggestions, please feel free to message the mods!

Subreddit Size

The concept is simple - The more subscribers a particular subreddit has, the more potential there is for traffic, but the more competition there is. The inverse is true.

Solution:

Think of subreddits of keywords. A generic keyword has more search volume, hence there is more potential for traffic, but they are incredibly competitive and difficult to rank for, whereas long-tail keywords with less potential for traffic but are less competitive and are easier to rank for.

At the beginning, we'll want to post in subreddits that have a medium-sized subscriber base.

This ensures that we get enough traffic, and makes it possible for us to actually appear on the front page or the second page and get a decent amount of exposure.

It's much easier to hit a home run with these subreddits and when you do, you'll get an immediate surge of traffic to your offers. It's really mind-blowing.

Anything above 2000 and below 10000 should be fine for now - make sure it's related to your offer though.

So... Now What?

If you've taken action, one of these three things would've happened at this point :

- You get a steady stream of traffic for days.

- You get an explosion of traffic flooding through the gates.

- Nothing happens.

I hope that either the first or second scenario occurs for you.

If you do indeed find that nothing happens, there are some tweaks that you can make :

- Change your title. Your title may not be attention-grabbing enough. Take a look at the front page of Reddit and see what kinds of titles work best on Reddit.

- Post more stuff before submitting links to your own offers. Social proof is paramount in Reddit, for reasons I've mentioned previously. Submit links/text posts that are irrelevant to your offer, accumulate some Karma points, then try again.

- Choose a smaller subreddit. Go down to subreddits with only hundreds of subscribers if you really can’t get traffic, then build it up from there.

- Choose a different niche. It could be that the niche that you’ve chosen isn’t that hot in Reddit or the buyer intent is weak. Experiment with other niches and you may see an astounding difference.

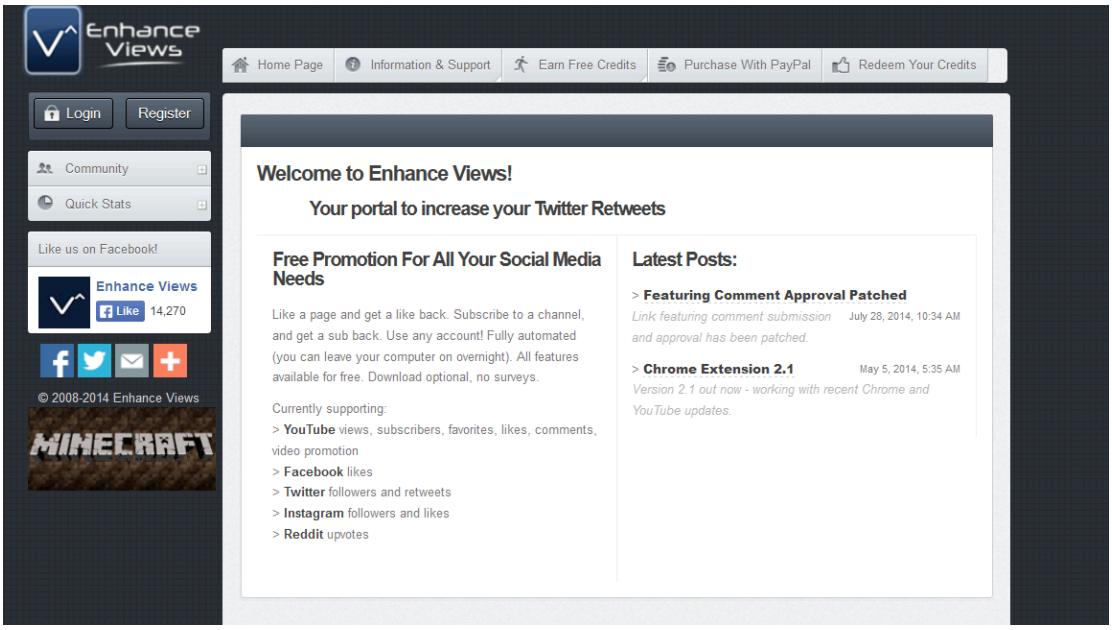

The Mistake That I Made :

I'm going to share with you a mistake that I made in hopes that you'll learn from it and avoid it in your marketing.

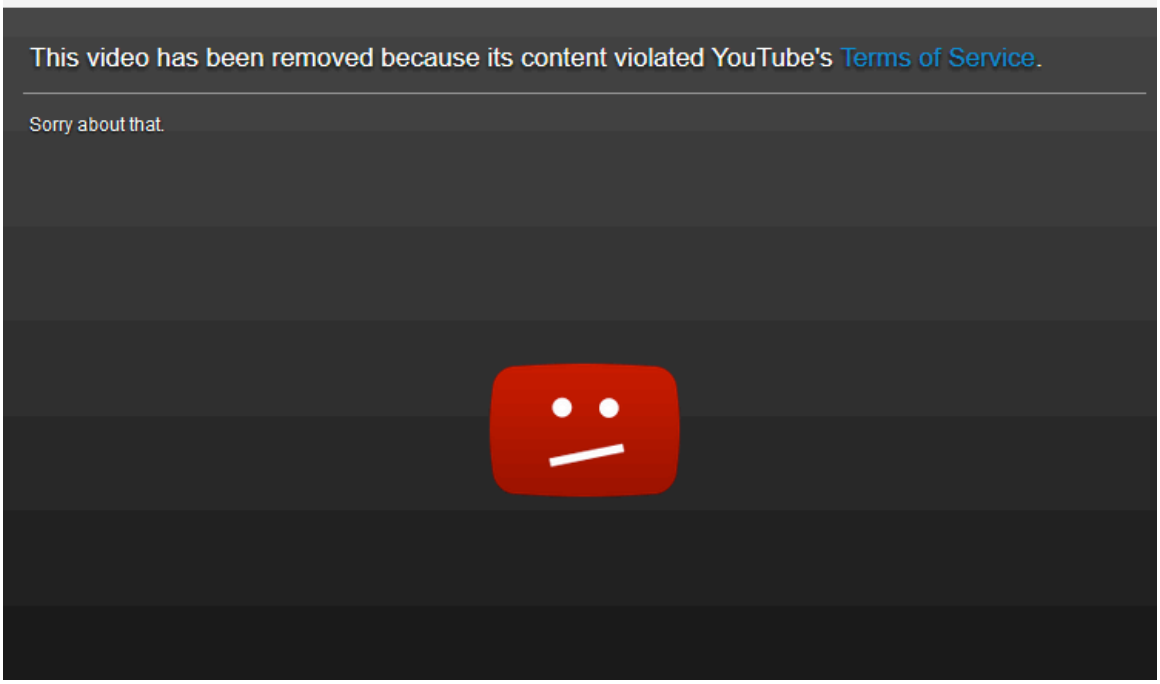

I had a successful video in the muscle building niche which I saw traffic rolling in and got excited. The video was at around 9,000 views and generated $2100++ of commissions for me.

The mistake that I made that caused me to lose my Youtube video was this.

I decided to take it up a notch - I purchased views from a site called enhanceview, hoping that it'll increase the perceived popularity of the video.

Big mistake. Without notice, my video was instantly taken down by Youtube.

I've been slapped by Google before, but never Youtube.

The lesson here is ,

It's better to depend on legitimate methods on obtaining views rather than quick-fixes.

But if you do purchase views, be smart about it.

I will not elaborate :)

Extras

Reddit Paid Advertising

I'm not going to get into this, because honestly I find that the free method should suffice, but feel free to experiment with it.

Reddit ads start at $0.75 CPM (per thousand impressions) and the minimum spend is $5.

Reddit ads are delivered in the form of a sponsored link, i.e. a post at the top of the page.

Like with regular posts, you get the option of submitting a link or a text post.

One word of advice, you'll want to start off in extremely targeted and small subreddits, before going into larger, broader ones.

Don't start off with the main page option - it's unlikely that you'll see a positive ROI off the bat.

Adult Offers

There are subreddits that are NSFW which contain adult content.

CPA networks like Peerfly have adult offers that you can promote. There are tons of in-house affiliate programs online too.

To access the nsfw subreddits, click here (Warning : Adult Content)

It's really interesting that the subscriber base of these subreddits are enormous! (many of them have 6-figure subscribers) .. So the potential in these subreddits are unimaginably huge.

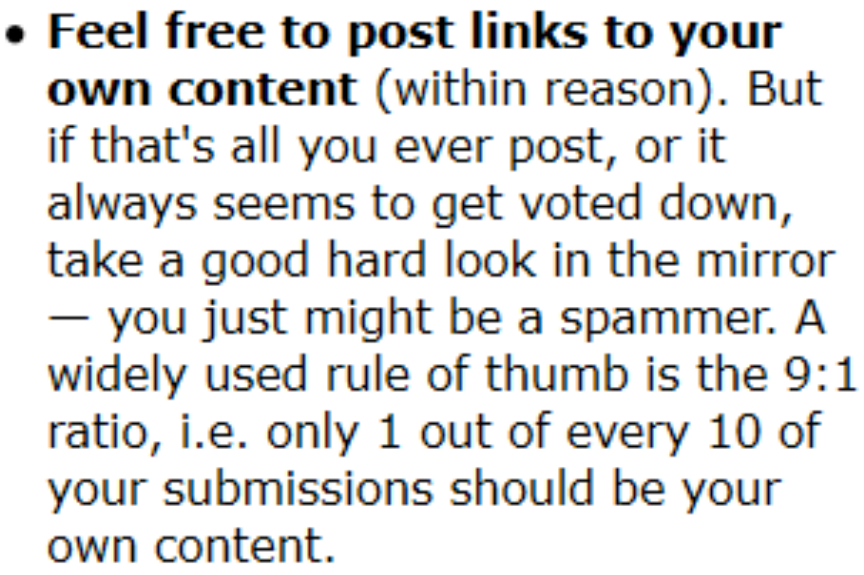

There's not much you have to do differently, actually. Just create a mini-site like covered previously and submit links/text posts.

This is completely optional, though.

Don't do it if it makes you uncomfortable at all.

Tips :

- Don’t submit more than one post per day, regardless if you use another account, Reddit tracks your IP address
- Submit a couple of posts that don’t link to your stuff first, then start posting those that link to your offers.

- Find out more about Reddiquette (Reddit Etiquette) here.
- Start off with small/medium sized subreddits, then move on to bigger ones once you get the hang of things.
-Read the posting guidelines and FAQ before beginning posting in a subreddit.
- The ideal posting time is before 5am EST.
- Submit a combination of links and text posts
- Don’t get distracted! It’s a lot of fun on Reddit and I get carried away sometimes.

Final Words

Once again, I want to congratulate you because you now have in your hands a blueprint to drive thousands of visitors to your offers for FREE!

Thank you for putting your trust in me and I sincerely hope that this guide serves you well.

Remember - Systems don't fail, people do. What I've covered so far absolutely works, it's been proven over and over again.

But nothing works unless you do : 97%-99% of people who buy this guide won't do anything about it, they'll just leave it to rot on their hard drive, not unleashing the true power of this system. But you're different - you're an entrepreneur who wants to make a difference in your life and in your business, so please take massive action and you will see massive results!

To Your Success,
Naidy.
